

26 March 2019

Dear NAWO members, partners, colleagues and friends,

You are warmly invited to the NAWO AGM and Annual Seminar, kindly hosted by Dr Roberta Blackman Woods MP.

This year this will be held in the Jubilee Room, Westminster Hall, Houses of Parliament on Wednesday 3 April 2019.

The AGM will begin promptly at 3.40. Entry to the room is possible from 3.30. Please do share this information with existing and potential members. The invitation is not only to the formal representative of your organisation, but also to all members of your organisation. We would very much like to welcome them to hear about our work.

The Seminar, which will focus on the outcomes and implementation of CEDAW and CSW will begin at 4.45 and end at 6.00pm. At this event, we will also share some of the outcomes of the NAWO Action Learning Conferences as this work relates to implementation of CSW by young women and girls.

Please allow time for security. As there is significant political activity at this time, and it is a Wednesday which is usually a busy day, please allow plenty of time. You may wish to bring this invitation with you.

Having served the maximum time on the Board of NAWO possible, I am stepping down from the Board of NAWO and as Chair. It has been a great pleasure and honour to try to be of service to the cause of equality, along with many amazing women, whom I thank most warmly for all their enthusiasm, vision and perseverance. The current, and potential, trustees of NAWO are wonderful women all and surely NAWO will grow and prosper in their capable hands.

Looking forward very much to seeing you at the AGM and the interesting seminar that will follow.

Warm wishes,

Zarin Hainsworth Fadaei
